

Season 9, Week 16, 8/13/2012, 3:58 PM

Nearly the end of the season! We're baking some super-fluffy white bread today (white bread dough is actually a lot easier to work with than whole-wheat). In today's 'zine: info about the re-subscription process, a photo from the vigil last week for the victims of the Sikh temple massacre in Wisconsin, and info about a poetry evening at Vimala's Curryblossom this week!

Enjoy the bread!

Monday, Aug. 13 (today) -- Every subscriber with email access gets an email reminding them of their pledge and order. Y'all can reply to this email and let us know your new order & pledge for Season 10.

Thursday, Aug. 16 -- The bakers, Beth and Shanika start making follow-up phone calls to folks who haven't replied to the email and folks who don't have email access.

Friday, August 24 -- Check-in with folks doing phone calls to see who they've heard back from so far.

Wednesday, September 5 -- Deadline for resubscriptions! Everyone we've heard back from at this point goes on the baking schedule for Monday the 10th.

PS. We definitely have room for new members this season. If you know people in food insecure households, or people of color, who would want to join the bakery, please invite them! Contact us if you want subscription materials.

Vigil Wednesday night at the Sikh GuruDwara of NC in Durham to remember the victims of the senseless violence at Oak Creek temple, Wisconsin. Photo: WRAL.

Sikhism was originated in northern part of India called Punjab; it was initiated about 500 years ago. The majority of the 25 million Sikhs live in northern India. There are approximately 700,000 Sikhs in the USA. They are the followers of Sikh Scriptures contained in Holy "Guru Granth Sahib". Often, Sikhs have been mistakenly identified with Osama Bin Laden and been victim of hatred and ridicule. For more information on Sikhism, visit: <http://www.saldef.org/learn-about-sikhs/>

WE FEEL THE TOXINS WE FEEL THE DANGER
WE HEAR THE CHILDREN WE SEE NO FUTURE
WE BEDBOUND GENDERBOUND JAILBOUND
WE HOMED & UNHOMED WE THIS SACRED
FIRE

WE WISH WE COULD GIVE ALL
WE LONGING TO GIVE
WE A CELEBRATION
WE WISH WE KNEW HOW
WE FEEL A TASTE OF IT, FREE
WE HUNGER LOVE STRONGER
WE SOUNDING THIS LOUDER
WE SMELL A NEW DAWN
WE TASTE THIS NEW POWER
